Edward Le Prohon Proves a Youthful Whirlwind in Athletic Contests.

The first annual Sunday school athletic meet of the Sunday schools of Salt Lake City was held yesterday afternoon at Lagoon under the auspices of the Boys' section of the Y. M. C. A. It was won by the First Methodist Sunday school, which scored 37, with the East Side Bap-tist Sunday school a close second. The meet was full of interesting contests and

The foremost of these was Edward Le Prohon of the First Methodist team. He was the biggest point winner of the day, bringing 19 points for his team. In the high jump he cleared 4 feet 6 inches, and in the broad jump he was recorded at 14 feet 3 inches, but he made a further jump that would have won had he jumped from the take-off. He is only 13 years of age, and stands 4 feet 8 inches high, so he jumped within 2 inches of his height, which is a remarkable feat.

The Y. M. C. A. is also endeavoring to arrange a basket ball and a baseball league among the Sunday schools of the city. The winners of first places received bronze medals on the back of which are engraved the date and event. Those who came in second received watch fobs, with the event, date and Sunday school meet on them, and those who got thirds were awarded ribbons. The results:

The reorganization of the Park City team will necessitate a change in the league games this week. Salt Lake did not wish to take advantage of the crippled condition of the Summit county team, believing it would be for the best interests of the sport to allow them to get as strong a combination as possible, and the game tomorrow against Park City has been postponed, and the Miners will come down Sunday with their new team. Instead a postponed game with Ogden will be played here tomorrow. Gimlin was called up last evening and consented to come to Salt Lake for this date.

TWO YALE MEN COLLAPSE WHEN FLAG IS DROPPED.

Boulton and Noyes Done.

In the final spart Burton and Noyes were done, their oars literally slipping away from them. Here Harvard began to open up clear water, and in the last ten or fitteen strokes she pulled away. Noyes, Yale's No. 6, absolutely exhausted, began to miss the stream on a catch and swing through the air. He sat up until the flag dropped and then fell backward into the boat. Chase, at No. 5, dashed water on him, but he remained unconscious for a considerable time. All the way down the last mile and a quarter the Yale coxswain had been throwing water onto Boulton's face, and when Coxswain Berklow finally yelled "vast" Boulton fell forward on his oar.

Harvard Men Intoxicated.

Harvard's men, in the intoxication of their victory did not stop when the flag fell, but rowed on under the draw bridge amid the din of hundreds of yacht whisof the boom of cannon and the shouts of thousands of Cambridge men, who almost jumped out of the observation train into the Thames to get at their crew. Harvard won the race by less than two lengths and a half. Her time was 23:02;

While the crews had the tide with them they had a brisk quartering wind which made fast time impossible. The record for the course is 20:10, made by Yale in Conditions Favored Victors.

The conditions this afternoon, according to theories to the Yale men, played an important part in the race. The time set important part in the race. The time set for rowing the race was 4 o'clock and when at 3:30 o'clock Referee Richards with the judges, E. C. Storrow for Harvard and W. W. Skiddy for Yale, steamed over the course the wind was blowing strong. It had been admitted that Harvard had the best men physically and that Yale's only hope lay in superior rowing. The Yale coaches knew this and when Referee Richards asked General Skiddy and Mr. Storrow what they had to say about the corditions, Mr. Storrow at once said:

Harvard Puts on Steam.

Harvard put on steam and the boats finished the mile and a half on even terms. Yale's effort, however, began to tell on her men just before the end of the first two miles and Boats and Archive the end of the state tell on her men just before the end of the first two miles, and Boulton dropped the stroke back to 29. When Filley saw this he quickly put his stroke up to 32, and at the navy yard he once more had his crew in the lead. Yale put her stroke back to 30, and held it over the third mile. As soon as Filley had taken the lead away from Yale he let his stroke down to 30, and at this gait both crews passed the two and a half mile flag and the three mile flag.

Yale Is All In.

Half a mile from the finish Yale had dropped her stroke to 28 from sheer exhaustion, while Harvard still held hers at 30. But even at this point Harvard only had a second to her credit. For a quarter of a mile further Yale kept Harvard from increasing her lead, but over the next and last quarter of a mile Harvard began to slip away from her rival little by little. A quarter of a mile from the finish Boulton raised his stroke to 32, where he gamely held it for a short distance as Harvard raised hers first to 31, then to 32 and finally to 33. When the Harvard captain let go the last burst of his power, Yale had finished up every ounce of her endurance and the crimson shell sped on to victory.

The official times were as follows:

Rain prevented the opening of the state lawn tennis tournament on the Y. M. C. A. courts yesterday as scheduled and a number of the matches were hurriedly transferred to the B Street courts. The players were under a disadvantage even there as these courts were naturally before the greatest crowd ever gathered here on a race day. Coming after years of defeat, the victory was particularly sweet to the crimson. It was a great Yale crew that Harvard defeated, a crew that had broken all records fn practice and went to the stake boat a favorits. Tonight Harvard's joy is unconfined.

Harvard won, but Yale rowed a race that will live long in the annals of college sports. Not only from the start, but until the last sixteenth of a mile did the shells cease to lap each other. The men in the rival boats could see each other for more than three miles and a half, as first one coxswain and then the other called upon his crew. Harvard really got the lead when the killing pace proved too much for the Yale men.

Boulton and Noyes Done.

In the final spurt Burton and Noyes were done, their oars literally slipping.

Surprise of Day.

The surprise of the afternoon was Thompson's game with Whitney. It is true that Whitney was not in his game and a better score had been looked for considering the progress he had been making in the past few weeks, and particularly after the form he had shown in his practice game the previous evening; but Thompson's play came as the surprise. He drove with accuracy and pace, and that, together with his overhead work, which was professional at some times in its deadliness, scored him a victory in what the committee believes will be the shortest match of the tournament.

The Results.

The following matches were decided: Thompson beat Whitney, 6-1, 6-3. D. P. Taylor beat Dinwoodey, 6-4, 6-3. Conrad beat Goodwin by default. Badger beat Whitworth, 6-3, 6-0. Boyd beat Channing by default.
